Brawley, Calif.

Dear Brother Wieland:

On various occasions recently I have thought of you and wondered how things are going. I want you to know that your brethren have an interest in you and hope that your service for the Master may be increasingly successful.

I have been driving on to complete the revisions of the manuscript on which I have been working for years. I had the benefit of some fifty or sixty readers, some of the ablest men in the Movement in various phases of service in various sections of the world. The revisions are now practically completed. I shall be very glad when this is in the hands of the publisher. It has been a long, hard grind.

This type of writing is very exacting. It is much easier to just tell one's own views. That is comparatively simple. But to faithfully reproduce the positions and teachings of men of the past in the historical setting and sequence is a very exacting task, I assure you.

Very sincerely in the Master's service,

L. E. Froom
